

Discover How to Get Business Credit with Vendors that Report to Dun & Bradstreet

Building strong business credit is crucial for any business looking to secure funding, negotiate favorable payment terms, and establish a solid financial foundation. While traditional credit options from banks and lenders are often challenging to obtain, there is an alternative path to creditworthiness: establishing vendor credit with suppliers that report to Dun & Bradstreet.

What is Vendor Credit?

Vendor credit is a form of business credit extended by suppliers to their customers. It allows businesses to purchase goods or services on credit, with payment due at a later date. Net 30 accounts are a common form of vendor credit, where businesses have 30 days to pay their invoices without incurring any late fees or interest charges.

Why Report to Dun & Bradstreet?

Dun & Bradstreet is one of the leading business credit reporting agencies. When vendors report your payment history to Dun & Bradstreet, it builds a credit file for your business. This file includes information such as your payment history, credit limits, and financial stability. A strong Dun & Bradstreet credit score can make it easier to qualify for favorable credit terms, secure loans, and attract new customers.

How to Get Business Credit with Vendors

Building business credit with vendors requires diligence, patience, and a strategic approach. Here are the steps you should follow:

1. Identify the right vendors: Not all vendors report to Dun & Bradstreet. Start by researching vendors in your industry that offer net 30 payment terms and have a history of reporting to credit agencies.
2. Establish a strong payment history: Make sure to pay your invoices on time, every time. Even one late payment can negatively impact your credit score.
3. Build relationships: Get to know the sales representatives and account managers at the vendors you do business with. Building strong relationships can help you negotiate favorable credit terms and resolve any payment issues promptly.
4. Request a credit limit increase: As you establish a consistent payment history, request a credit limit increase from your vendors. This will show that you are a reliable customer and increase your overall credit capacity.

5. Monitor your credit report: Regularly check your Dun & Bradstreet credit report to track your progress and identify any errors that need to be corrected.

Tips for Success

Here are some additional tips to help you succeed in building business credit with vendors:

- Start small: Don't try to overextend yourself by applying for too much credit too quickly. Start with a few net 30 accounts and gradually increase your credit as you build a strong payment history.
- Be proactive: Don't wait for your vendors to report your payment history. Contact them directly and request that they report your business to Dun & Bradstreet.
- Offer incentives: Some vendors may be willing to report your payment history if you offer them an incentive, such as a larger order or a referral.
- Be patient: Building business credit takes time and effort. Don't get discouraged if you don't see results immediately. Stay consistent with your payments and follow the steps above, and you will eventually build a strong credit profile.

Success Stories
