

Remember Tammi Young: The Tragic Story of a Young Life Cut Short

Tammi Young was a beautiful and vibrant young woman with a promising future ahead of her. She was a talented musician, a gifted artist, and an aspiring actress. But her life was tragically cut short at the tender age of 18 when she was murdered by her estranged husband, Robert Young.

Tammi and Robert were married in 2003, but their relationship quickly deteriorated. Robert was possessive and controlling, and he often abused Tammi physically and emotionally. In 2005, Tammi finally left Robert and filed for divorce. But Robert refused to accept the end of their marriage, and he began to stalk and harass her.

On the evening of August 18, 2006, Robert confronted Tammi at her home. He stabbed her multiple times and then fled the scene. Tammi was rushed to the hospital, but she died from her injuries a few hours later.

Robert Young was arrested and charged with Tammi's murder. He was convicted of first-degree murder and sentenced to life in prison without the possibility of parole.

Tammi's death was a senseless tragedy that left her family and friends devastated. She was a bright and promising young woman who had her whole life ahead of her. Her death is a reminder that domestic violence is a serious problem that can have deadly consequences.

Warning Signs of Domestic Violence

Domestic violence can take many forms, including physical, emotional, and sexual abuse. It can happen to anyone, regardless of age, race, gender, or sexual orientation. If you are in a relationship with someone who is abusive, it is important to know the warning signs and to get help.

Some common warning signs of domestic violence include:

- Your partner is possessive and controlling.
- Your partner abuses you physically, emotionally, or sexually.
- Your partner threatens to hurt you or your loved ones.
- Your partner makes you feel isolated and alone.
- Your partner prevents you from working or going to school.
- Your partner monitors your phone calls and emails.
- Your partner makes you feel like you are worthless and that you deserve to be hurt.

If you are experiencing any of these warning signs, it is important to get help. You can call the National Domestic Violence Hotline at 1-800-799-SAFE (7233) or visit their website at www.thehotline.org.

Helping Victims of Domestic Violence

If you know someone who is being abused, there are things you can do to help. First, let the person know that you are there for them and that you believe them. Encourage them to seek help from a domestic violence hotline or shelter.

You can also help by providing practical support, such as giving the person a place to stay, helping them to get a job, or taking care of their children. Most importantly, let the person know that they are not alone and that there are people who care about them.

Remember Tammi Young. Her death is a reminder that domestic violence is a serious problem that can have deadly consequences. If you are in a relationship with someone who is abusive, please know that there is help available. You do not have to suffer alone.

In Memory of Tammi Young

Tammi Young was a beautiful and talented young woman with her whole life ahead of her. Her death was a senseless tragedy that left her family and friends devastated. But her memory lives on through the work of the Tammi Young Foundation, which provides support to victims of domestic violence.

The Tammi Young Foundation was founded by Tammi's parents, Mark and Cheryl Young. The foundation's mission is to provide financial assistance to victims of domestic violence, to raise awareness about the issue of domestic violence, and to provide support to families who have lost loved ones to domestic violence.

The Tammi Young Foundation has helped countless victims of domestic violence to rebuild their lives. The foundation has also raised awareness about the issue of domestic violence and has helped to change the way that society views this crime. The foundation's work is a testament to Tammi's life and to her legacy of love and hope.
