

Tracks of Trash: An Eighteen Year Old Schligy Streams

The Problem of Plastic Pollution

Plastic pollution is a major environmental problem. Every year, millions of tons of plastic end up in our oceans, where it can harm marine life and disrupt ecosystems. Plastic can also leach harmful chemicals into the environment, which can pose a health risk to humans.

The Tracks of Trash project was created to help address the problem of plastic pollution. The project uses a mobile app to allow volunteers to track and map plastic pollution in waterways. The data collected by the project is used to create maps of plastic pollution, which can be used to identify areas where pollution is most concentrated. The data can also be used to track the movement of plastic pollution over time.

The Impact of the Tracks of Trash Project

The Tracks of Trash project has had a significant impact on the issue of plastic pollution. The project has raised awareness about the problem and has helped to inform policy decisions. The project has also been used to develop educational materials about plastic pollution.

The Future of the Tracks of Trash Project

The Tracks of Trash project is still ongoing. The project is currently working to expand its reach to more waterways and to develop new tools to track and map plastic pollution. The project is also working to develop partnerships with other organizations to help address the problem of plastic pollution.

How You Can Help

You can help the Tracks of Trash project by volunteering your time to track and map plastic pollution. You can also donate to the project or spread the word about the problem of plastic pollution.

The Tracks of Trash project is a valuable tool in the fight against plastic pollution. The project has raised awareness about the problem, helped to inform policy decisions, and developed educational materials. The project is still ongoing, and it is making a real difference in the fight against plastic pollution.
