

Trouble on Black Friday: The Adventures of Hamilton Hamfist Hancock

Hamilton Hamfist Hancock was a young boy who loved to shop. He loved the feeling of being surrounded by all the new and shiny things, and he loved the thrill of finding the perfect bargain.

Radiant Crossing: Trouble On Black Friday (The Adventures of Hamilton "Hamfist" Hancock Book 5)

by G. E. Nolly

★★★★☆ 4.2 out of 5

Language : English
File size : 416 KB
Text-to-Speech : Enabled
Screen Reader : Supported
Enhanced typesetting : Enabled
Word Wise : Enabled
Print length : 19 pages
Lending : Enabled

But Hamilton's favorite time to shop was Black Friday. Black Friday was the day after Thanksgiving, and it was the day when stores offered their biggest sales of the year. Hamilton would wake up early on Black Friday and head to the mall with his parents. He would spend hours browsing the stores, looking for the best deals.

This year, Black Friday was even more exciting than usual for Hamilton. His parents had given him a gift card to his favorite store, and he was determined to spend it all.

Hamilton arrived at the mall early on Black Friday morning. The mall was already packed with people, all of them eager to get their hands on the best deals. Hamilton wove his way through the crowd, his eyes darting from one store to the next.

Hamilton finally made it to his favorite store. He took a deep breath and stepped inside. The store was even more crowded than the mall, and the air was thick with the smell of perfume and body odor.

Hamilton scanned the shelves, looking for the best deals. He saw a great deal on a new video game, and he quickly added it to his cart. He also found a great deal on a new pair of shoes, and he added those to his cart as well.

Hamilton was so excited about his purchases that he didn't notice the people around him. He bumped into a woman carrying a large box, and he knocked the box out of her hands. The box crashed to the ground, and the contents spilled out.

The woman was furious. She started yelling at Hamilton, and she accused him of being a rude and inconsiderate child. Hamilton was so embarrassed. He didn't know what to say.

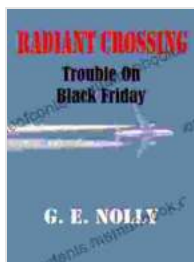

Just then, Hamilton's parents arrived. They saw what was happening, and they quickly apologized to the woman. They also helped Hamilton pick up the spilled contents.

The woman was still angry, but she eventually calmed down. Hamilton's parents promised to pay for the damaged goods, and the woman agreed to let them go.

Hamilton was so relieved. He was glad that his parents had helped him, and he was glad that he had learned his lesson. He realized that it's important to be kind and helpful, even when things are crazy.

Hamilton and his parents left the store, and they headed home. Hamilton was still a little shaken up from what had happened, but he was also glad that he had learned a valuable lesson.

From that day on, Hamilton was always careful to be kind and helpful, even when things were crazy. He knew that it was important to treat others the way he wanted to be treated.

Radiant Crossing: Trouble On Black Friday (The Adventures of Hamilton "Hamfist" Hancock Book 5)

by G. E. Nolly

★★★★☆ 4.2 out of 5

Language : English

File size : 416 KB

Text-to-Speech : Enabled

Screen Reader : Supported

Enhanced typesetting : Enabled

Word Wise : Enabled

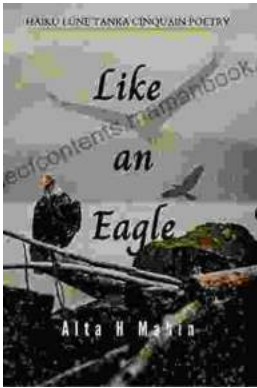

Print length : 19 pages

Lending : Enabled

FREE

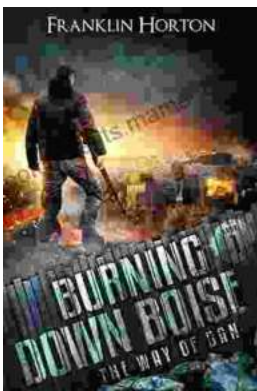

DOWNLOAD E-BOOK

Like An Eagle Alta Mabin: A Literary Journey Through the Eyes of a Native American Woman

Like An Eagle Alta Mabin is a powerful and moving novel that tells the story of a young Native American woman's coming-of-age in the early 20th century. Set against the...

One in the Way of Dan: A Complex and Nuanced Novel

Dan is a successful businessman with a beautiful wife and two lovely children. He has everything he could ever want, but he's not happy. He feels like there's...